

PUMPKIN LOVERS WINTER SPECIAL

It started out as a little plant growing in the corn field, next to the front porch. Could it have grown from a pumpkin that we used to decorate last Autumn? Not knowing how well it would grow with the farmers corn, or if the pumpkins would be ripe before the farmer harvested the corn, I asked Clay to transplant it to our garden. And there it grew and grew ! And grew !!! It grew in all directions. Through the beans, over the fence, and up the tomato plants. Then pumpkins started to appear. Here's one ! Here's another !!

Look at this one !!! Come harvest time we decorated EVERYWHERE with pumpkins; on the porch, by the fence, in the guest parking, by the gate..... Then it was time to decorate for Christmas and I had all these pumpkins, which of course I couldn't waste. So each was baked and scooped out and frozen until we ran out of freezer room, then I began canning them, making pumpkin butter, and making pumpkin pancakes, pumpkin muffins, pumpkin cookies..... Still the freezer is full! So, come stay with us this winter and enjoy our
